Architektur und Raumgestaltung

Germany, Austria, Switzerland and Liechtenstein

Daycare centres and kindergartens, after-school care centres and crèches are more than just places for pre-school care: they are specially designed buildings and rooms with architecture and interior design suitable for children: the structural structure of these rooms, their arrangement and design, already have a decisive influence on their later use, and the responsible bodies and architects must coordinate with each other at an early stage on issues such as these. But the design that goes hand in hand with the pedagogical concept should also serve as a selection criterion for parents. Every kindergarten, every day care centre is different, must be different depending on the urban, social and cultural environment and emphasise different aspects in accordance with the approaches and objectives of the provider. Good kindergartens therefore offer space. Space not only in the sense of sufficient space, but space in the sense of diverse possibilities and experiences. This book shows exemplary buildings and interiors with character, in which characters can develop.
